

OUR MAIN VALUES

Trust and Respect

Trust and Respect are built on open communication, reliability, integrity, and mutual recognition among all members.

Adaptability and Learning

Adaptability and Learning emphasise the ability to adapt while fostering a culture of continuous learning and improvement.

Accountability

Accountability means that every partner is responsible for honoring their commitments and contributing meaningfully to the partnership.

Innovation and Responsiveness

Responsiveness highlights the importance of being attentive to the needs and expectations of individuals, groups, and situations, and of taking timely and appropriate action to address them.

Innovation values creativity and progress, encouraging new ideas, solutions, and approaches to address challenges effectively.

Passion

Passion is the driving force behind deep commitment and enthusiasm for a shared cause or common goal.

Impact driven-approach

Impact-Focused Approach reflects a commitment to prioritising and measuring the tangible, positive outcomes of partnership efforts.

OUR OBJECTIVES

- Support conservation, health, and population stakeholders in establishing and strengthening PHE partnerships
- Promote PHE best practices
- Promote the integration of the PHE approach within communities living in or near sensitive ecosystems
- Contribute to the global PHE movement and support the sustainability of the approach

ABOUT THE NETWORK

Founded in 2014, the Network brings together health and conservation stakeholders to advance sustainable, cross-sectoral initiatives across Madagascar.

OUR MISSION

The Madagascar PHE Network connects, inspires, and supports its members by positioning the PHE approach as the reference model for integrated conservation and development programs in Madagascar.

OUR AREAS OF INTERVENTION

WHY THE PHE APPROACH?

The Integrated Population, Health and Environment (PHE) Approach is based on a simple reality: the health of communities and the health of ecosystems are inseparable. By simultaneously promoting biodiversity conservation, community well-being, and access to quality health services, it delivers sustainable solutions and creates lasting positive impact.
